

Lyn Burningham, Ed.D.

Dr. Lyn Burningham retired in June 2010 as the Coordinator for Alternative Language Services in Jordan School District, a position she held for twelve years. Her responsibilities included such programs as ESL compliance and endorsement, Homeless, Migrant, Native American, Refugee, Emergency Immigrant, translation services, special education multicultural testing, MESA, REACH training and parent involvement.

Her prior experience includes serving as a Year Round and Traditional elementary school principal, district GT teacher specialist, classroom teacher, and is currently an adjunct professor for several universities. She was Utah's National Distinguished Principal in 1998.

Lyn's educational credentials include a Bachelor's Degree in Elementary Education/Early Childhood Education and both Masters and Doctorate Degrees in Education. Her endorsements include Early Childhood, Gifted and Talented, Educational Administration, and English as a Second Language (ESL). Lyn's doctoral research examines parent involvement in the literacy development of homeless children.

I am really fine anywhere - all 3 levels. Wherever you need the help. Since retiring, I have been in either elementary or middle school. However, could help out in high school also.
